To become a better leader, First, you need to understand the present state of your leadership journey. Before you can set out on an inspiring journey towards achieving specific goals and creating a development plan, you must identify your patterns, strengths, development areas etc. This engagement is to discover yourself.

You're about to embark on an intense 2-month coaching sprint; we'll assign you a coach. Together with your coach, you will have a complete analysis of who you are, where you stand, and where you want to go. This is when the real transformation begins.

Four months of coaching is the perfect time to get an accurate picture of your progress and see how things are shaping up. A progress review will allow you to understand better where there may be room for improvement and help set goals going forward.

Your 4-month coaching journey will provide you with your first round of insights into the extent of your improvement. You've achieved great first results by daily creating new behaviors, refining existing skills, and overcoming leadership and personal challenges. You've grown, and your coworkers have recognized it.
